VIRGINIA WESTERN

BUILDINGS FOR THE

“For the future . . .

I see the master plan for community colleges completed, and perhaps even before that a further expansion in order to accommodate the great yearning for higher learning . . .

I see a new wave of their graduates pursuing college parallel courses . . .

I see still more sophisticated industries building plants in Virginia, secure in the knowledge that their requirement for special skills will be fulfilled.

DEDICATED WITH A PROMISE

FUTURE

I see a new economic and social order, which we call the technicians, growing in numbers and importance and stretching the capabilities of senior scientists and engineers by taking over their less absorbing duties . . .

And, I foresee in a surprisingly few years the time when the people of Virginia will expect two years of community college to almost the same degree that they expect to graduate from high school.”

—Governor Godwin

The Honorable Mills E. Godwin Jr.
Governor of Virginia

MOST OF ALL . .

.. A BRIDGE

“The Community College System was designed to bridge the growing gap between high school and college, to provide an additional level of education for the technically skilled, and to give us a flexible, graduated system of higher education in Virginia with a place for every talent.”

—Governor Godwin
